executive office furniture

C. H.

Hiebert, a name which has represented quality without compromise for over a quarter of a century, presents functional distinction in its truest sense through the Americana line of executive office furniture. The Hiebert desk offers geometric balance, utility, and a series of carefully conceived and executed components which enable custom fitting to suit the needs and tastes of those who desire excellence. In short, the Americana desk is a contemporary classic . . . a combination of fine craftsmanship and aesthetic simplicity with purpose.

Care has been taken to ensure the fulfillment of the many demands of daily office efficiency. The thorough and precise finishing process is culminated with a protective coating of Lacquer, a product of the S & M Paint Co., thereby permitting abuses to furniture finishes previously considered impossible. File drawers are constructed with a full-suspension system while the exteriors of all drawers are completely finished to promote attractiveness and ease of operation.

With its picture-frame molding and aggressive but clean lines, this furniture is designed and built for the office desiring an atmosphere of discrimination.

An executive's many functions may require extensive working surface for "around the desk" conferences, paper work, and an area for readily accessible data such as references and records . . . modular design fulfills these requirements. The decisive character of the Senator and Continental desks provides an expansive working area before the executive. The credenza, as shown with the Continental desk, is an effective addition to the executive suite.
